

Rising Environmental Youth Leaders

2021 - 2022

REYL is a high school environmental leadership program connecting young people from underserved communities to their local parks and open space. Young adults learn the skills necessary to become strong environmental advocates and community leaders through service learning, environmental education, and outdoor trips.

During this eight month program, students will receive support and training to design and implement a Community Action Project to create climate change awareness in their local communities. Students will assist with service projects, learn about climate change effects and solutions and take field trips to parks throughout Marin County.

The program will begin with a two-day overnight leadership training where we will engage in team building & leadership skills to prepare for the school year. We will also have a mid-year retreat, which will be a 4-day camping trip to a National Park.
